- Management, Dess, G., Lumpkin, G., & Eisner, A. (2007). McGraw-Hill Irwin: Boston, MA.

Course Description

- This class offers an integrative approach to developing business strategies and planning and implementation of strategic models at the organizational level. Prerequisites: MGT 380, MKT 371, FIN 367, & Senior Standing.
- This course builds on the analytical tools taught in previous core and required courses as the students learn to formulate strategies, make strategic decisions and create action plans for implementing those strategies and decisions. This course will culminate in a cross-functional team term project that will require the use of strategic analyses, strategic decision-making skills, and strategic formulation.

Course Objectives

- To help students understand the forces that drive firms beyond mere “survival” and toward outstanding performance. The content covered in this course is intended to provide a “toolkit” of ideas, analysis tools and theories that help the student develop and solidify their understanding of effective strategic management.
- To build and refine several skills essential in an increasingly competitive and dynamic global business environment. These skills include written communication, teamwork, written communication, oral presentation, written communication, research, written communication and critical/creative thinking skills. The goal is to integrate and build upon the skills in the student’s functional area of specialization (e.g. finance, marketing, management, etc.) and extend the student’s ability to think and act strategically.

Learning Orientation: In the strategic business context, by using the skills previously taught in required courses, this course will emphasize the skills needed to identify potential strategic issues and problems, determine the criteria to solve the problem, analyze the problem using the identified criteria, present potential solutions with criteria for a preferred solution, and presentation of the preferred solution.

Administrative Information

- Student Absences on Religious Holy Days Policy: Section 51.911(b) of the Texas Education Code requires that an institution of higher education excuse a student from attending classes or other required activities, including examinations, for the observance of a religious holy day, including travel for that purpose. A student whose absence is excused under this subsection may not be penalized for that absence and shall be allowed to take an examination or complete an assignment from which the student is excused within a reasonable time after the absence. University policy 861001 provides the procedures to be followed by the student and instructor. A student desiring to absent himself/herself from a scheduled class in order to observe (a) religious holy day(s) shall present to each instructor involved a written statement concerning the religious holy day(s). This request must be made in the first fifteen days of the semester or the first seven days of a summer session in which the absence(s) will occur. The instructor will complete a form notifying the student of a reasonable timeframe in which the missed assignments and/or examinations are to be completed.

- Withdrawals: It is the responsibility of the student to know important dates such as University drop dates. Moreover, it is the responsibility of the student to officially withdraw from any class that he or she intends to drop.
