

Kyle Wagner
Teaching Assistant
Psychology and Philosophy
Graduate

Degrees Earned

B.A., Psychology, Washington University in St. Louis, 2005

M.A. (in progress, all but thesis), Psychology, New Mexico State University, 2008 (anticipated)

M.A. (in progress), School Psychology, Sam Houston State University, 2011 (anticipated)

Professional Licensure and Certifications

Certified in Human Participants Protection Education for Research Teams by the National Institute of Health

Work or Professional Experiences

New Mexico State University Department of Psychology, Las Cruces, NM

August 2005 – Dec 2007

Graduate Research Assistant

Assist faculty in the Acquisition of Understanding, Knowledge, and Skills (AUKS) lab in research projects from conception, through design, implementation, data collection, analysis, and completion.

Teaching Assistant

Organize grades, assist professor, teach labs, and conduct class in absence of professor.

Washington University Department of Psychology, St. Louis, MO

January 2004 – December 2004

Research Assistant

Developed protocols and administered psychology experiments for cognitive lab. Responsibilities included scheduling participants, assigning credit for participants, counterbalancing experiments, running experiments, and collecting and entering data.