Course Description: According to the SHSU Undergraduate Catalog, ENG 266 [Readings in Literary Genres] is “[a] study of the various kinds of literature on the basis of their content, form, or technique, with emphasis on the conventions or usages which govern each type.”

In this class we will be working with primary texts from a number of different genres (poetry, short stories, novellas, plays, etc.) with the aim of reading and understanding both the content and the context of each work. Secondary sources will be used to analyze and foreground the works in question, and a knowledge of the historical and social influences that govern our interpretations of texts and literary concepts will be of notable importance. To access these ideas, we will also be exploring the history of literary theory and criticism, including (but not limited to) the following approaches: New Critical, psychoanalytic, Marxist, reader-response, structuralist, and post-structuralist. It is my hope that with a fundamental understanding of not only the major literary concepts and conventions but also the theoretical movements that give prominence to certain approaches our exploration of these texts will be made more complete and satisfying.

Course Objectives: The objectives for this literature course require the ardent participation of the reader within both the class and the text. To do well in this class you MUST do all of the required reading that I assign. I cannot stress this point enough. We will be working through some potentially difficult material, and it is ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY that you do the work asked of you before you arrive in class. Otherwise, I’m afraid you’ll be lost during our class discussions.

- To establish some sort of context in which to appreciate and evaluate the texts we explore in class
- To expand your literary vocabulary and to improve your ability to “talk about books”
- To develop your ability to respond to literature in writing
- To introduce and expand upon some of the elements of genre as they apply to a range of literary (and sometimes nonliterary) texts

Required Texts:

Kennedy, X. J. and Dana Gioia. Literature: An Introduction to Fiction, Poetry, and Drama (10th Edition) AND Handbook of Literary Terms (Pearson Longman)

Both of these texts are packaged together

Attendance Policy: You will be allowed THREE (3) absences without penalty. Each subsequent absence beyond the limit will incur a ½ letter grade deduction on your final average. In cases of extreme emergency, you may notify me with the proper documentation in support of your reason for missing class. I IMPLORE YOU: Do not miss more than 3 classes. It could be the difference between a passing and a failing grade.

Evaluation:

Literary Theory Paper	20%
Writing Prompts (x4)	20%
Midterm Exam	20%
Final Exam	20%
Reading Quizzes	10%
Group Presentation	10%

NO MAKE-UP EXAMS WILL BE GIVEN

Plagiarism and Academic Misconduct

It is academically dishonest, and often illegal, to present someone else's ideas of writing as your own. You cannot use even short phrases or parts of sentences obtained from other sources unless you properly document those sources. Documentation includes marking quotations as well as providing notes, citations, and a reference list. If you receive assistance from a source other than your instructor, your colleagues in the class, or The Writing Center, then you must acknowledge that assistance. Identify the source and the nature of the assistance in an acknowledgments note at the end of the assignment. Failure to acknowledge constitutes academic misconduct. In addition, it is academically dishonest to submit your own previously written work for a current assignment or to submit an assignment in more than one class without the prior permission of the instructors.

You will be held responsible for furnishing upon request all the sources and preliminary work (notes, rough drafts, etc.) that you used to prepare written assignments. If you cannot produce those materials upon request, the assignment will be considered incomplete and so will not fulfill the requirements. You will be given the opportunity to redo the assignment on a different topic, one you negotiate with your instructor. Further, you are also responsible for protecting your own work. It is your responsibility to ensure that other students do not copy your work or submit it as their own. Allowing your work to be used in this manner constitutes academic misconduct.

Plagiarism and academic misconduct of any kind may constitute grounds for failing this course and may result in further disciplinary action according to university policy. Consult the SHSU Student Handbook regarding your responsibilities and rights concerning plagiarism and academic dishonesty. (In addition, writing textbooks often contain useful discussion of plagiarism.)

Student Absences on Religious Holy Days Policy

Section 51.911(b) of the Texas Education Code requires that an institution of higher education excuse a student from attending classes or other required activities, including examinations, for the observance of a religious holy day, including travel for that purpose. A student whose absence is excused under this subsection may not be penalized for that absence and shall be allowed to take an examination or complete an assignment from which the student is excused within a reasonable time after the absence. University policy 861001 provides the procedures to be followed by the student and instructor. A student desiring to absent himself/herself from a scheduled class in order to observe (a) religious holy day(s) shall present to each instructor involved a written statement concerning the religious holy day(s). This request must be made in the first fifteen days of the semester or the first seven days of a summer session in which the absence(s) will occur. The instructor will complete a form notifying the student of a reasonable timeframe in which the missed assignments and/or examinations are to be completed.

Americans With Disabilities Act

SHSU adheres to all applicable federal, state, and local laws, regulations, and guidelines with respect to providing reasonable accommodations for students with disabilities. If you have a disability that may affect adversely your work in this class, then I encourage you to register with the SHSU Counseling Center and to talk with me about how I can best help you. All disclosures of disabilities will be kept strictly confidential. NOTE: no accommodation can be made until you register with the Counseling Center. Please contact the Chair of the Committee for Continuing Assistance for Disabled Students and Director of the Counseling Center, Lee Drain Annex, or by calling (936) 294-1720.
