Welcome

The Graduate Program at Sam Houston State University offers advanced and specialized study to those who aspire to become intellectual leaders in the professions and in various fields of teaching and research. The school presents graduate students the opportunity to pursue individual educational programs through carefully directed intellectual activity. Above all, Sam Houston offers graduate education that is both professional and personal.

The graduate faculty at Sam Houston State University are active in research and publication with a majority holding doctorates in their disciplines. While many serve as consultants to education and industry, their commitment is to classroom teaching.
